GOVERNMENT MAKES CRAP SHOOT ER

The Old Practice of Pitching Cents With the Old-Fashioned Big Cent-Prevalence of the Game of Craps.

"The financial policy of the United States Government is responsible for negroes shooting craps."

This remarkable statement was made by a gentleman to a Dispatch writer last night. It was not by any means appa rent what connection, however remote there was between a negro crap shooter and the men who shape the financial policy of the American Government.

The gentleman proceeded to explain They were more than twice the size of those now in circulation, and apparently much more plentiful.

When two negroes met there was pretty certain to be a game, the same which on selected horn handles, $1.50 quality for has now been supplanted by craps. This is supposing that each had about his clothes as much as a penny. The game ended when one negro had all the pen-

The game was usually played at a brickyard. These were much more plentiful forty or lifty years ago than at the present day. There was much more building, apparently, certainly more in the country districts. Brickyards, old and new, were on every hand. The hard, smooth surface was very inviting to the negroes who had the pennies to yield up. The game was played in very simple fashion. A stick was set up in the ground and then a line was drawn ten or fifteen yards away. Behind this line the players took their position, armed with their pennies. The game was to see who could pitch his cent closest to the stick. The winner took both pennies. It will be seen that pitching pennies was very simitiful forty or fifty years ago than at the seen that pitching pennies was very simi-lar to pitching quoits, only the winner in the latter game does not claim the weapon of his opponent.

THE NEWS OF FULTON

ED IN THE EAST END.

COMES HERE FOR HIS BRIDE.

Personals and Briefs.

A very pretty marriage was solemnized last Wednesday night at 8:30 o'clock in the parlors of Rev. Mr. Bain, pastor of Union-Station Methodist church, the contracting parties being Miss Lena Beile Blunt, of the East End, and Mr. Samuel W. Wooters, of North Carolina, a former well-known Fultonite.

The bride, who was beautifully attired in pearl gray, wore opals and diamonds, the gift of the groom, and looked exceedingly pretty under the soft glow of the shaded lights. The bridesmalds were Misses Laura and Fannie Wooters, sisters of the groom, and were handsomely attired. The other attendants were Mr. A. L. Bradley (best man) and Mr. W. S. Luck. Immediately after the ceremony the bridal party repaired to the home of the groom's parents, No. 397 Louisiana street, Fulton, where an elegant recep-tion was held and congratulations show-tion was held and congratulations showered upon the happy young couple.

The bride, who is the daughter of Mrs.
Roberta E. Blunt and the late Charles L.
Blunt, is a very pretty lady of charming personality, and resided with her mother at 1009 north Twenty-fifth street. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. P.

Much dissatisfaction exists among the Fultonites owing to the hours of collecting the mail. At 4:30 P. Some time sine 'he change which has gone into effect auses many inquiries as to the reason. The brickwork on the large store of Williamsburg avenue, which Mr. F. H. The Penguin and His Habits. (Westminster Gazette.)

If any doubts should still be entertained s to the possibilities of perpetual motio they will be speedily dispelled by a visi to the penguin enclosure which adjoins the seal pond in the gardens of the Zoo. Here, to the infinite merriment of a very umerous clientele, the king penguin is to be seen daily working out this mysterious problem. As hour succeeds hour, and the shades of night descend upon this quaintly tenanted corner of North west London, the interesting visitor from the Antarctic seas goes on ever and anon, slowly but awkwardly, hobbling around the vary edge of his circular pond-sleek of plumage, upright as a soldier, but flatfooted withal, for all the world like some gouty old parvenu. And in the persistency of its perambulations, not to mention its stolid, stolcal indifference to the rude remarks of its human critics, one recog-nizes that slavish adherence to profes-sional advice and resignation to the inevitable which so well become the genuine ypochondriac.

In his native haunts the king penguir is a bird of remarkable habits. Like the guillemots and other scafaring species, he spends his life in vast colonies, the arrangement of which, when upon shore, is carried out on the strictest military principles, both as regards classification and in the matter of symmetrical effect. The young birds, the moulting ones, and those engaged in maternal labors all range themselves in separate squadrons, and woo betide the luckless newcomer who may have "fallen in" to ranks that know him not. The excessive fatness of the penguin, from which it derives its name, is one of its chief characteristics, and the specimens in Regent's Park, which include the Gentoo variety from the Falkland Islands, are no exception to the general rule. Its feet are place so far back that when the bird is standing on the ground it is perfectly erec like the auk, the grebe, and others of that class. The penguin does not possess the power of flight, but in the water its wings are used with no little dexterity for purposes of propulsion-indeed, in this espect, it is perhaps of all aquatic birds acile princeps, Sir James Clark Ross, the distinguish

Victoria Land in the Antarctic region: birds, which densely covered the whole surface of the Island, along the ledges of the precipices, and even to the summits of the hills. He and his party were vigorously attacked as they wade brough their ranks-a challenge, est again unwarrantable trespass. The ordant notes of the defenders, and this oupled with the stench, made them not forry when the ceremony of proclaiming he sovereign was at an end.

By sailors the crested penguin is known by the name of "jumping-jack," from its nabit of jumping from the water. Athleticism, however, is not a strong point with either of the varieties now in the gardens, but still there are few more exhilarating sights to be witnessed than that afforded by these well-groomed, but sadly corpulent, birds, honestly endeavoring, by what may, literally speaking be described as "constitutional" methods counteract the glaring effects of

A few days ago your correspondent received "an endiess-chain letter" asking for a contribution of 10 cents for the erection of a memorial to the martyrs of the Maine and soldiers killed in our recent wars. As usual, he was asked to write four letters to friends, asking them to do work similar to his own. The chain was started by Lieutenant Hobson. His letters to his friends were marked No. 2; these four wrote 16 letters; their friends 61; theirs 256, and theirs 1,024, &c. By the time letters No. 12 reached headquarters $151.73.50 should have heen received, "Uncle Sam" receiving a similar sum for postage. The letter to me was No. 60, and I have reached the conclusion that "the memorial fund" must be up in the millions by this time; so my 20 cents will be given to wife and Charles for starlight street-car rides.

All the Fusel Oil originally contained in this whiskey (as is in all whiskeys when first made) has, buthe natural aging process, become dissociated and converted into essential ethers, thereby eliminating the dangers from its use.

By the peculiar process of its manufacture this whiskey has a tendency to act on the kidneys, and thereby lessening its action on the liver, and for this reason I would recommend it to habitual users of whiskey.
